Introduction

Prepared by the
OAKLAND CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

WITHIN the boundaries of Alameda County there are three large cities, having a population of more than 335,000 souls. These three cities are Oakland, Berkeley and Alameda, all lying in the extreme northwestern corner of the County and fronting on the Bay of San Francisco. In fact, the City of Alameda, the smallest of the three, is an island connected with Oakland by bridges across a narrow estuary and tidal canal. The three cities to the stranger would appear as one—in fact, they are one in all respects save their names and governments.

Oakland is the manufacturing, commercial and financial center of the East Bay district. Three transcontinental railroads terminate in the city, where their tracks meet the waters of the western ocean. Oakland typifies harmonious development. During her years of reconstruction and rebuilding she has not neglected a single phase of community interests. Her expenditures as a municipality have been evenly apportioned between her waterfront, City Hall, Auditorium, parks, playgrounds, streets and schools, etc. The bond issues, aggregating $8,000,000, which were enthusiastically voted by her progressive citizens four years ago, have practically been expended.

Seventy per cent of the manufacturing in the district on the East Bay shore, of which it is the center, is called on in Oakland. Her great industrial section is built up along the miles of railroad tracks which run along the western and southern waterfronts. Back of the factories and extending easterly and northerly is a gradually sloping expanse, dotted with homes, which are gradually building up toward the tops of the foothills. Within all these thriving cities may be found residential features to suit the most fastidious.

The City of Berkeley occupies nine square miles and has the distinction of being the most rapidly growing community of its size in the United States during the last census period, increasing from 13,445 in 1900 to 40,000 in 1910. It is now estimated to have a population close to 68,000. The city with its beautiful homes is the seat of the University of California, the second largest university in the United States, with an attendance in excess of 8000. In the University grounds, many acres in extent, enriched with forests of oak and eucalyptus, are two architectural triumphs, either one of which would bring fame to any European city. The first of these is the Greek Theatre—an amphitheater of solid masonry built in a charming hollow of a wooded hillside and capable of accommodating 10,000 people at one time.

The second notable architectural feature of the University campus is the Sather Tower, a slender shaft of white California granite, whose pinnacle is more than 600 feet above the level of the blue waters of the bay, which it overlooks.

Quite different, yet no less unusual and alluring in their own way, are the homes in the third of the three large cities that form one community in the northwestern extremity of Alameda County. Alameda has no hills. It is a level island bounded on the north by the busy waters of Oakland Harbor; on the east by San Leandro Bay; on the west and south by the waters of the great Bay of San Francisco. Alameda is the home of the bungalow, containing perhaps the most beautiful streets of bungalows in the bay region of California. The lawns of many houses slope down almost to the water's edge. Long, white, sandy beaches attract thousands of pleasure seekers to enjoy swimming and bathing through nearly every month of the year. Hundreds of rowboats and yachts gathered along the beaches or in the quiet waters of San Leandro Bay testify to the interest in sailing and rowing.

POPULATION.

The present volume contains by actual count, after deducting all names of firms, churches, schools, etc., the names of 122,066 persons, of which 85,700 are shown in Oakland, 25,000 in Berkeley and 11,366 in Alameda. Taking these figures as a basis in computing the population and estimating that each name in the directory represents at the rate of  $2\frac{3}{4}$  persons, which is considered by all directory publishers as a conservative multiple, we find the population as follows:

|                             |         |
|-----------------------------|---------|
| Population of Oakland.....  | 235,675 |
| Population of Berkeley..... | 68,750  |
| Population of Alameda.....  | 31,006  |
| Total .....                 | 335,431 |

An increase in the Three Cities of 24,322 over 1915.

OAKLAND'S NEW CITY HALL

Names Appearing in Black Letters

in this Directory represent the ENERGY AND PUSH of the city, and it is a pleasure for the publishers of the Directory to have the opportunity to make the public acquainted with them through our pages. Those in BLACK LETTERS are the people who ACCOMPLISH THE WONDERS in business here and make the city what it is. They recognize and support all public necessities and things needful to improve and serve a city. They are NOT DRONES AND SPONGES who never support anything, and thereby gain by others' hard work and money. When you PATRONIZE THOSE IN BLACK LETTERS you patronize men and firms who will patronize you in the same broad manner in which you patronize them.
